October 30, 2018, Jackson, TN

Effective November 1, 2018, Robert V. Redding and Jonathan O. Steen will join the law firm of Spragins, Barnett & Cobb, PLC (SBC). This move will allow Redding and Steen to better serve their clients and strengthen the services provided by SBC.

Alan Rheney, managing partner of SBC stated, “Bob and Jonathan are both highly regarded lawyers and come from a practice and firm culture very similar to ours. We see this as a great fit. In addition, their experience as trial and appellate counsel for industries such as health care, manufacturing, banking, and insurance makes them a valuable addition to our firm. SBC is known throughout the state for having expertise in these practice areas. They provide quality work, as exemplified by their past and present participation with the Tennessee Bar Association and as elected fellows of the Tennessee Bar Foundation.

SBC was founded in 1897, and has established a long-standing reputation of success and excellence. Today, its team of attorneys is comprised of well-known and respected legal professionals; many of whom hold esteemed positions at the local and state level.

“We are excited about this positive professional development for us and our clients,” said Bob Redding, the former senior shareholder of Redding, Steen & Staton, PC. “Being part of SBC will allow Jonathan and me to focus even more on serving our clients’ legal needs.”

Jonathan Steen, a past president of the Tennessee Bar Association, stated, “Bob and I have a very similar litigation practice to SBC’s and our clients will benefit from our new professional relationship. We will also be able to offer our clients additional services such as banking and business transactions, creditor rights and bankruptcy, employment law, real estate, estate planning and probate, elder law, family law, and criminal defense.”

SBC is dedicated to serving the needs and promoting the best interests of individuals, business owners and financial institutions in Jackson, the surrounding communities and throughout Tennessee. From an individual who suffers debilitating injuries in a truck accident to a small-business owner who is planning to expand operations, its seasoned team of attorneys provides a diverse and comprehensive portfolio of legal services and solutions.

Jonathan began his practice in Tennessee at SBC in 1994, later joining Armstrong Allen in 1999. He founded Redding, Steen & Staton, PC in 2006, where he practiced law until returning to SBC. He is a past president of the TBA (2014-15) and the TBA YLD (2002-03). Jonathan is a founding member and past president of the Howell Edmunds Jackson Inn of Court (2012-13). He currently serves in the TBA House of Delegates and serves on the National Conference of Bar Presidents Executive Council.

Jonathan serves as trial and appellate counsel for industries including health care, manufacturing, banking, and insurance. His primary practice area is civil litigation, with a focus on legal malpractice, professional liability and products liability defense; commercial and business disputes; and appellate advocacy. He has a strong interest in technology, particularly as it relates to electronic discovery issues, and has served as an ESI discovery Special Master in federal court.
